THREE CANADIAN RECORDS, ONE COMMONWEALTH
29 SWIMMERS WILL BE GOING TO BARCELONA

MONTREAL—Twenty nine swimmers earned spots on Canada's Olympic Team.

The five-day trials produced three Canadian and one Commonwealth record.

However, the meet was one of the biggest ever with 526 competitors from 93 clubs taking part.

In 1988 the Olympic selection process was spread over two meets, a trials May 28-June 1, and a Summer Nationals August 17-20. This year only a one-shot Trials was available. One swimmer, Mark Tewksbury, prequalified in 1991, based on his third place ranking in the world for the 100 back.

The team size of 29 is down from the 33 that competed in 1988 at the Seoul Games.

After the two stage selection process four years ago 18 Canadian, three Commonwealth and one world record were established.

The selection standards were established from the 1990 World Rankings which were blended with the 1991 World Championships, allowing only two swimmers from each country in each event. It was the Canadian Olympic Association that required that this time (20th place in the world) should be the standard. SNC than added refinements such as when the time could be made (Trials in May) and further requirements such as it must come from a final swim (no prelims).

Performing under these conditions is the most difficult aspect of our sport.

Those who were successful can now concentrate on the next obstacle, performing in Barcelona, an even bigger challenge.

A special recognition has to be made of Tom Ponting's selection to his third Olympic Team. He competed in Los Angeles in 1984, a finalist in the 200 fly, and a silver medal winner in the 4x100 medley relay. In 1988 he was seventh in the 100 fly and fourth in the 200 fly, again winning a silver in the 4x100 medley relay. Ponting is only the third Canadian swimmer to compete at three Olympics; the others being Ralph Hutton (1964-68-72) and Ron Jacks (1964-68-72).

Of the 29 on the team, 10 were in Korea four years ago.

Best bets among the men will be backstroker Mark Tewksbury, flier Marcel Gery and the men's medley relay. It has won a medal in every Olympics since 1972, except for the boycotted Games of 1980. Others who should reach finals will be IM specialist Anderson, Myden and Ward. Breaststroker Cleveland will have to be at his best. The 100-200 breast are the strongest events with the most international depth.

Women's hopes rest with breaststroker Guylaine Cloutier, sprinter Andrea Nugent, backstroker Nikki Dryden and high ranked IM specialists Marianne Limpert and Nancy Sweetnam. Both relays should be in the finals but a medal may prove beyond reach.

The 29 swimmers represent 17 different club programs. In 1988 the 33 swimmers came from 12 programs and back in 1984 it was 18 clubs producing a total team of 38.

If experience is necessary, the coaching staff has it. Head coaches Deryk Snelling (at every Games since 1972 with Canada's team) and Dave Johnson (at all Games since 1976) will provide the finishing touch.

Snelling was inducted in the International Swimming Hall of Fame in Ft. Lauderdale, this year and his record in club coaching in Canada will be hard to equal. In 1972 he placed 14 of his club swimmers on that year's Olympic Team, in 1976 it was 13. He's still placing more of his athletes than anyone else, with six this time around.

One thing you can count on, the Olympics are seldom according to script. Expect the unexpected. Someone will be inspired beyond anything they've ever done before.

You can only win if you're in the final—hence Aussie coach Laurie Lawrence's famous "You can win, you have a lane," after Duncan Armstrong qualified 7th for the 400 free, winning a silver in the final.

DAY 1, MAY 13

PATRICIA YOUNG

Three years ago Andrea Nugent started to doubt herself. She was broke. She was swimming slowly. If she had wanted to, she could easily justify quitting and getting on with her life. She had a bronze medal from the 1988 Olympic Games. What else did she have to prove and who was she trying to prove it to?

What shook her out of this slump was an inadvertently cruel comment by an official at swim meet.

As she hauled herself out of the water after a slow race he leaned over and hissed, "Why don't you just quit and make room for the younger swimmers?"

Andrea Nugent, UCSC, record in 100 free Marco Chiesa

Nugent was stunned. Had she trained all these years to be washed up at 21?

"I knew then that if I quit I would eventually have to come back," Nugent said. "I hadn't accomplished what I wanted to do. I still had some fast swimming in me."

The choice was made. She headed west to be with her former coach, Deryk Snelling, and the powerful University of Calgary Swim Club. She quit university, moved into her parent's home, took waitressing jobs and trained and trained and trained.

It was the right choice. On the first day of the 1992 Olympic Trials she toppled one of Canada's longest standing records; the 100 freestyle. Her time of 56.53 shaved 7/100ths of a second off Carol Klimpel's 11 year old record.

"Andrea was in a class of her own tonight," Snelling said. "She was incredibly tough. She has set the standard for the meet."

"We have had five training camps this year," Nugent said. "You can see how it has effected everyone here from my club. We're really fit and ready.

"The final wasn't as hard as I thought. I wasn't at all nervous when I walked onto the pool deck tonight. That really helped because it took some of the pressure off.

"I can't predict what I'll be doing after the Olympics. The Games are all I care about right now. When I finally leave the sport I want to walk away and not look back. No regrets. And it will be my choice."

Two more UCSC swimmers qualified in the 100 breaststroke to wear the red and white parka. Jon Cleveland was the race favourite and despite a slow start he was able to easily win in a time of 1:02.28.

The race for the second Olympic berth was decided by a touch. Curtis Myden, who was using the race as a warm up for the individual medleys, surprised everyone, including himself, when he out touched Michael Mason, of Etobicoke Pepsi.

"I was overwhelmed," Myden said. "I wasn't expecting that. I wasn't even sure if I was going to shave down for it. Then I decided I may as well give it a shot.

"This morning I chopped a lot of time off my personal best. At the 50 I was dead even with Mike, but I knew if I looked at him I would lose my stroke, so I concentrated on what was going on in my lane.

"Going up for my medal I was overwhelmed with joy. This is what I've been striving for. Now I have to take another step and further my next goal.

"I've never felt like I've had to prove myself. It has helped me a lot to have fellow Olympians (on my team) who have done it before to show me the way and how to handle the pressure."

While Myden was still in stun-mode, Cleveland was analysing his race.

"I wasn't trying to do anything special," Cleveland said. "I was just trying to qualify for the team. 1:01.99 (the current record) was sticking in the back of my mind.

"I realize that sometimes if you go after a specific time you can falter. I didn't want to miss the qualifying for the team by making a mistake in my race.

"I always have a really bad start and I've adapted to that. In all of my races I come from behind. Having a bad start today didn't effect me. I just concentrated on what I had to do, which was take it out with the field and then bring it back fast.

"The last two strokes really hurt me. I swam 98 metres and glided in the last two."

Cleveland credits UCSC's strength this year on their intensive training camps.

"Our training this year has been superior to what we have done in the past. We were in Australia with Laurie Lawrence. He's a psycho coach and I think it rubbed off on Deryk, because we started doing similar sets. It really worked.

"We went long distance at a really intense level, holding 180 heart rates. I didn't expect to come here with a lot of speed. Obviously the training has been working.

"There is something about the Olympic year. You just seem to train harder and faster. How many chances do you get in a life time?"

Sweetnam and Malar, Barcelona bound Marco Chiesa

Darren Ward thought his chance was secured in the 200 freestyle.

He had breezed through the morning heats just under the qualifying standard. Beside him for the final was Pacific Dolphin's Turlough O'Hare. Whether it was over confidence or too much cat and mouse and not enough racing, no one can tell, but neither O'Hare, who won, or Ward qualified for the team. O'Hare was stunned.

Turlough O'Hare, PDSA Marco Chiesa

"There was too much racing and not enough thinking," O'Hare said. "Who knows what happened. Darren went out pretty fast to set the pace in the morning. The whole field was hurt by relying on us to set the pace."

Nancy Sweetnam finished the day the way Andrea Nugent had started it: with a record breaking swim. She lopped over two seconds from her own national record to win the 400 metre individual medley in 4:45.58. She did it despite a promise from her coach.

Sweetnam hates swimming the 400 IM so much that her coach told her last year that once she broke the national record she'd never have to swim it again.

"Well, I learned to like broccoli too," Sweetnam said. "It's just one of those things. The more you do it the learn to like it."

Finishing four seconds behind Sweetnam to qualify for the Olympic team in a time of 4:45.58 was Joanne Malar of Hamilton.

"I didn't want to get too far out of reach," Malar said. "I was surprised, but I've been training really hard and I know I can be as fast as everyone else. Now I can stay with them.

"I did well at the Pan Ams and that helped me knowing that I can do very well at a high quality swimming event.

"I think it has helped now that I've grown. Now I can start getting bigger I feel that I've just started swimming."

DAY 2, MAY 14

It was a long time coming for Marcel Gery. When he touched the wall in the 100 butterfly, the six years of waiting, delays and political boondoggles melted away. He finally got that trip to the Olympic Games.

Gery defected from Czechoslovakia after the 1986 World Championships. He came straight to Canada, settled in with the North York Aquatic Club and that week was training with his sights set on the 1988 Olympics.

Politicians had other ideas for Gery. He had not been in Canada long enough to receive his citizenship and since no exceptions would be made for him, he missed the Seoul Olympic Games.

"I was relieved when I touched and saw that I'd made it," Gery said. "I didn't really care about the time as long as it got me on the team.

"I've got two months to go. I've had some trouble with my back, but it should be hundred percent by then.

"It makes it all worth while. I'm really looking forward to the 4x100 medley relay. Those guys won silver in '84 and '88 so the tradition is there. I want to be a part of that."

The hardest part about preparing for Barcelona will be not seeing his family, especially his infant son.

"Nathaniel is a big inspiration for me," 27 year old Gery said. "He really misses me. He has been really attached for me. I'm family oriented and it's tough being away. I made sure that they'll be in Barcelona."

Julie Howard, 15, learned the hard way what jitters are all about. She arrived at the Trials as the number one seeded 100 freestyler. That night she watched the consols and finals from the stands.

"Before I swam, I saw Andrea (Nugent) and it hit me that I was going into the Olympic Trials seeded first," Howard said. "I got so nervous. As soon as I stood on the blocks the pressure really hit.

"At first I was really upset, but realized that was just the first race and I had four more days to make the team. If I could get through that, anything else had to be better. I just accepted it and went on.

Marcel Gery, NYAC, an Olympian at last Marco Chiesa

Howard did go on and on the second day eased past Nikki Dryden of Victoria to win the 100 backstroke.

"She was upset about the 100 free," her coach, Mark Fellner said. "She felt rotten, but when we left the pool she had come around. I knew she'd do well in backstroke."

"In the morning I swam the best I could," she said. "In my mind I thought that maybe if I swam really fast I'd get a medal. I was convinced that Nikki had the gold.

"I figured that 1996 was my real chance for the Olympics. To make the team now is a shock. It was a great surprise.

"I've trained really hard for both the backstroke and free. Now that I've got a place on the team I can have fun here."

Curtis Myden may have been happy with a silver in 100 breaststroke, but he was ecstatic after gold in the 400 individual medley. He let Kyle Seeback, NYAC, play the rabbit for the first two legs and sat in second. When he got to the breaststroke he moved past Seeback and the rest of the field. Steven Baird, GO, passed Seeback at the turn going into the freestyle. He made the standard, but finished four seconds behind Myden (4:20.45 to 4:24.83).

Myden is one of the really great new talents in Canada. The people who will tell you this the most often and the loudest are his team-mates. His coach thinks he is more than just raw talent.

"He's a good tactician," Snelling said. "He is a really super boy. He's not only a smart swimmer, but he is very aware of himself and what he can do, and then he does it.

"He doesn't swim above himself. He's like Alex (Baumann) was. He's like all the really good ones. He's very controlled and that's why I think he'll make a good IM swimmer.

"He doesn't look strong, but he is a super athlete. He can take any amount of training you can throw at him. His breaststroke is as good as anyone in the world. His freestyle is coming down and he has be pushing Mark (Tewksbury) in training on backstroke."

Snelling feels that Myden's weakness is his butterfly. Myden is 18 years old and still has lots of time to unravel the mysteries of that stroke.

Upset win for Howard, BRANT M.Chiesa

DAY 3, MAY 15

It's one thing to have a bad race and know it, but Turlough O'Hare was shocked when he saw how slow his time was after the 200 freestyle. There is nothing like feeling good and swimming slow to make an athlete question everything from himself to his coach.

O'Hare instead ignored any possibility other than making the team in the 400 freestyle. It wasn't, as he described it, a "pretty race", but he did make the team with a time of 3:54.73.

"After the 200 went so horribly I was so concerned about not making the team," O'Hare said, "that I couldn't sleep, couldn't do anything. I thought about the possibility of not making the team and then I put those thoughts away.

"The 200 was such a strange race. I can't believe that I went slower than in the morning. I wonder if we should get the Omega guys down here to check the clock.

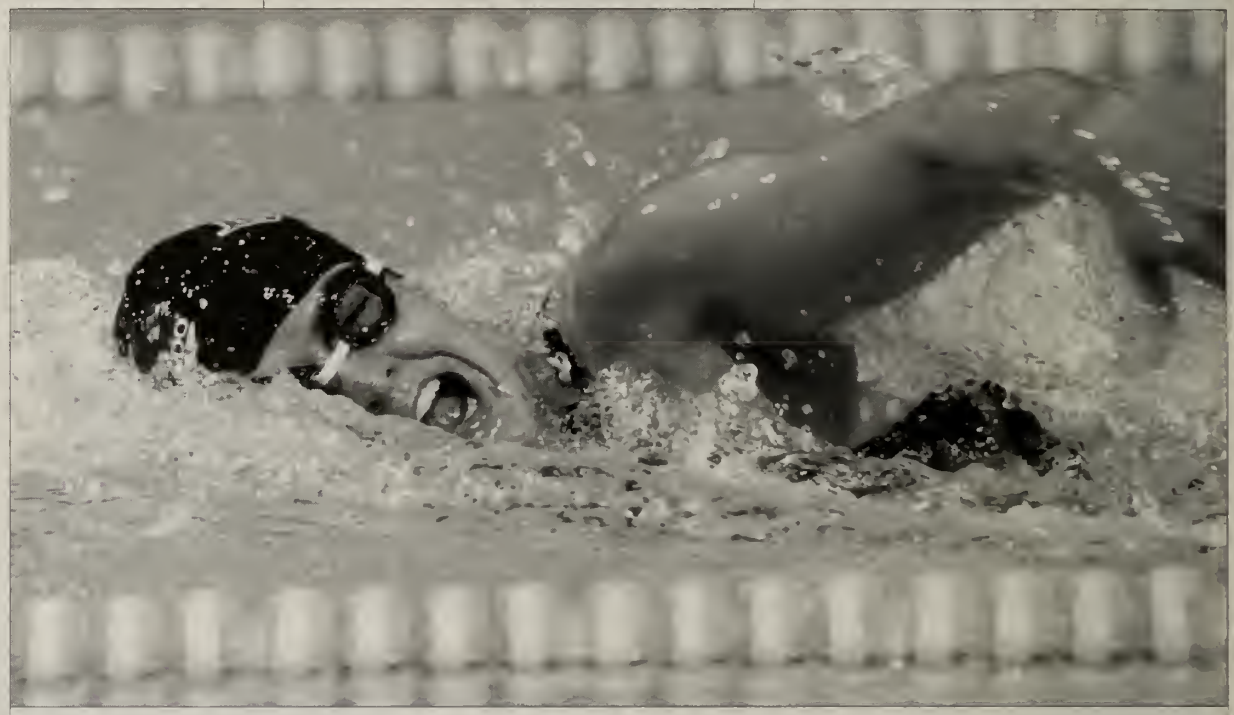
"I was terribly shocked. I knew I was first and turned around to see what the good news was. It was bad news. I haven't missed a shot at making the team since 1986. I was sure that I wasn't going to have that happen again.

"For the 400 I went out hard and held on. I turned around and saw the time. I thought I had gone faster than that, but was extremely happy that I'd made it.

"I can't explain why freestyle is so slow in Canada. Their are some really good young guys like Owen Von Richter coming up. The event could take off in the next few years.

"I have to re-assess what happened here. I know I can be much faster at the Games, but I think it would be extremely bad luck to predict a position for the 400 at Barcelona.

"I'm happy that I've made the team, but I hope that I can convince SNC that I should be able to swim the 200. I've trained for the 200 for the past four years. I've proved in the past that I have a good 200 free. I can do a good job for Canada. I've always represented the country well."



Nikki Dryden, Island Swimming, wins 400 free

Marco Chiesa

"Now that I've made the team I can put the mistakes behind me. When you get to the Olympics you have to just think about winning."

Because she had already made the team Nikki Dryden had the luxury of being able to criticize her race. She hadn't even really wanted to swim the 400 freestyle. She was only doing it because the 200 free had conflicted with the 100 back the night before.

"I don't feel that they thought out the layout of the Trials very well," the six-foot-one, Dryden said. "They should have switched the 200 free and the 400 free. I would have done just fine.

"I'm disappointed. I will just have to make a decision of which I will swim. My coach and I will try to figure which I will do better in."

Without the pressure of having to make the team, Dryden was able to swim a very relaxed, well paced race. She didn't make her move on front runner Christine Jeffery, GMAC, until the final 100 metres and won in 4:16.22. Jeffrey was second (4:17.69), only 33/100ths slower than the Olympic standard.

"She (Jeffrey) took it out a little too hard," Dryden said. "She has been faster than she was today. I started to pick it up after the 200 mark. I didn't built up the way I like to. That is when I really pulled away."

Freestyle events, which are the backbone of every swimming program, are struggling in Canada. Dryden thinks that can change if one person can make the "break through".

Dryden is only 17 years old, but has several years of international experience. She could be the one to drag the rest of the women's freestyle program into the 1990's.

"I think that when one person is swimming well others will raise that level," she said.

"Although I won I'm nowhere on the world rankings. Hopefully I will drop my times and everyone else will follow. When you see Mark Tewksbury everyone else has to swim to his level.

"It helps to race against new people. The Australians come to the west coast almost every year. They have some great freestylers.

"We go to meets in the States and that bring you back to what it takes to swim fast. I went to US Nationals last year and you realize that there are hundreds of fast swimmers there. In Canada you just have to watch out for a few people.

"Some people want to be the best in Canada, but for me that's not good enough."

DAY 4, MAY 16

The excitement that had produced two national records on opening day had sputtered and looked like it was in danger of going out. If any race was going to re-ignite that spark, it was the 200 individual medley.

Nancy Sweetnam had held the record for two years. In fact, no one had even come close to challenging her except Marianne Limpert.

Limpert trains in Toronto with Byron MacDonald. How she was going to perform was anyone's guess. She has been injured for a greater part of the season, but it didn't effect her performance at the Trials.

Limpert's strategy was simple. She wanted to stay with Sweetnam until the final leg and then break away. She felt that her freestyle was much faster. But then she had only been training for six weeks.

Her strategy worked. Limpert not only passed Sweetnam, but set a new Canadian and Commonwealth record of 2:15.15.

"My coach and I thought we'd go for a best time," the 19 year old Fredricton, New Brunswick native said. "I like Byron's coaching. He lets me have input in the program. It's a mutual decision about what I do.

"The record was in the back of my mind. Basically the idea was to go in and have a good race.

"Nancy was going for it so I knew that if I just stuck with her that I could give it all I had left on the last leg."

"Nancy congratulated me. We had a great race. Nancy had me in the breaststroke, but I knew if I could hang on to her in the breaststroke, coming off that wall I was just going to go like hell. As soon as I saw that I was ahead of her the adrenaline just shot through my system and I pulled ahead.

"I've been visualizing that moment for two months now. I heard my team-mates screaming while I was still racing and thought I had a pretty good time. When I saw the 2:15.15 I knew I had the record. It has been etched in my mind."

Limpert will have more than Sweetnam to worry about in Barcelona. At the top of the hit list are Americans, Summer Sanders, the defending world champion, and Nicole Haislett. The Australian and Chinese have each have medal contenders.

"The only thing I know is that the last time I raced Summer she dusted me. Obviously she will be fast in Barcelona, but I hope to be fit and ready and give her a good race.

"The past year has been one disaster after another. I've had tendonitis in both of my shoulders. That took me out of the water most of the fall and most of the spring too. I had to have cortisone shots in both of my shoulders. And when that go better I went up to altitude and while I was running I managed to get tendonitis in my Achilles heel.

"I had to have that taped up and I couldn't kick for a while. When that got better the shoulder went again. It has been one thing after another. I got sick too. It makes it all the more a sweet victory. I wasn't really until a month ago that everything was OK. We went down to Florida and I could relax and everything. Once school was over with I could really concentrate on swimming."

"I've never had a swimmer with this kind of major injury before," MacDonald said. "I was frustrated. We were doing what we thought would work. She only had six weeks of work. We came in here planning to do a lifetime best goal."

Marianne Limpert, NYAC, record setter for 200 IM Marco Chiesa

Third Olympics for flyer Tom Ponting, UCSC Marco Chiesa

Sweetnam didn't seem bothered about losing the record. Some thought that she was taking it hard and avoiding the media after the race, when in fact she was just warming down.

"It was probably good for me," Sweetnam said. "You learn more from losing than you do from winning. And more people lose than win.

"Racing is a cat and mouse game. I've been the mouse for a while. Now it's my turn to be the cat."

The excitement of Limpert's race, for MacDonald, was tempered by the heartbreak of Beth Hollihan's 200 butterfly performance.

Hollihan had trained all year just for the 200 fly. In the 100 fly she had shown more speed than ever before. It looked good for the 200.

She swam a steady race and was a comfortable fourth at the 150 metre turn. Jacynthe Pineau, SELECT, moved to the front while Hollihan and Mojca Cater, unattached, fought for second.

Pineau had the race. With four strokes left, Hollihan moved past Cater, but wasn't able to catch Pineau (2:14.98).

Pineau was just 2/100ths under the standard and was on the Olympic team. Hollihan was 1/100th over.

After the other swimmers had cleared the pool for the next event, she was still sitting beside the blocks, one foot in the water, her eyes glued to the unforgiving scoreboard.

"Beth has concentrated on only one thing this year," MacDonald said. "Beth was here to do one thing and one thing only. It broke my heart to see that race.

"She did everything right. It's not like she wasn't trying or had choked. She did a best time. To do that and then to come 1/100th short is, well....unfortunate.

"She is taking it very well because she's a very mature individual.

"She swam the heats of the 100 fly to test her speed. She wouldn't have done a 1:01. There was no reason to swim it that night.

Coach Benoit Lebrun with Jacynthe Pineau

Marco Chiesa

"We knew she was ready. She is one of the toughest mental swimmers I've ever coached. We felt that she had to be out in 1:04, which she was. She passed everybody on the last 50, but Jacynthe just had a better touch.

"I think Marianne (Limpert) would sacrifice a second of her time so that Beth could have that 1/100th."

Pineau was surprised by how narrow her winning margin was. She had expected to go faster, but was ecstatic with the win.

"I never doubted that I would do it," Pineau said. "I had hoped to go a little faster and was surprised to only make it by 2/100ths, but I'm still very happy.

"I was expecting Jennifer (Hutchinson) to take off like that. That is her style, but I don't have that much front speed.

"From the swim this morning, until the end of my race tonight I knew I was going to make the team. I was really confident."

"It was quite an emotional evening," her coach Benoit Lebrun said. "Jacynthe has a 2:12 in her, but because of the pressure she tends to be tense. She loses the stroke and then her rhythm.

"You could see her falter at 125 metres. She had the lead and because she is so fit she could hold on to it.

"Jacynthe is very easy to work with. She was worried coming into the Trials. You don't see that until you get here.

"It helped her that (team-mate) Nathalie Giguere already made the team in the 200 breast. That was the first real break for us. You could see how it helped the other swimmers from our club.

"We have never had an Olympian from our club since it's foundation in 1974. It's taken a long time to build to that level.

"That was what was missing in our program, the tradition of Olympians. Now we've done it.

"I didn't think it was going to be this hard."

DAY 5, MAY 17

Day. D for determination, which never faltered in Darren Ward. After three near misses he finally made the team in the 200 IM.

And D for distance events. Chris Bowie's successful last ditch attempt at making the team.

Or it could be D for Dean "Kondo" Kondziolka who swam under the qualifying time for the 50 free in the heats, but could not repeat that swim at night.

Or D for disaster as races were delayed almost an hour due to officiating foul-ups.

Every "sure thing" had slipped away from Darren's grasp over the past four days. He had the right placing in the 200 free, but his time was too slow. In the 100 fly he was fast enough, but finished third.

To secure a spot on the team he would have to beat Commonwealth Games double gold medallist Gary Anderson.

Guylaine Cloutier, ELITE — Marco Chiesa

Ward took the most logical strategy someone in his position could do. Go out fast, hold on and try to finish ahead of everyone else.

His plan worked. Twenty metres out from the wall he, Myden and Anderson were virtually even. Anderson touched first. Ward dropped his head, charged the wall and touched 37/100ths ahead of Myden. He was on his way to Barcelona.

Guylaine Cloutier added a 100 breaststroke win to her 200 win to swept the event.

"This is the best," she said. "My time the other night in the 200 would have finished second at the World Champs last year. I feel that this year will be my year.

"When I went to Seoul I was only 16 years old. I couldn't really believe that I belonged there. I kept thinking 'I'm small. I'm skinny. I'm only 16. What am I doing here.

"Now I feel like I can beat anyone."

Cloutier has continued to excel in an event that has seen stars come go.

"I swim for me," Cloutier said. "I prefer to improve slowly. While other people like Allison or Cindy (Onpuu) were making big jumps I was improving too. It just didn't look like it . But I'm still here."

The disruption that occurred as a result of the starter's error in the 50 free may have cost some athletes a chance at making the Olympic team.

Poor officiating led to appeals. These compounded the problem. An attempt to replace the starter during finals led to more protests. Eventually 11 swimmers raced in two finals, while five raced the consols.

Dean Kondziolka won, but didn't qualify for the team. Timing for a sprinter is everything. The 50 minute delay ruined everyone's warm-up preparation and affected the remaining events.

The meet actually ended two days later in another pool with no spectators watching. Eleven sprinters were given another chance to try to make the cut off time, but not surprisingly, no one did.

As the magazine goes to print some of those swimmers may appeal or even sue, contending they were denied a fair chance.

"All we want is a level playing field," Kondziolka's coach, Bill Barton said. "I think Dean was robbed of his chance to show what he can really do. He's been under the standard six times."

No one ever said it was easy to make the Olympic team. Four years of preparation can be lost by a bad start, a bad day or a bad call.

"Trying to get a swimmer on the team is like trying to get a camel through the eye of a needle," Tom Johnson, Pacific Dolphin coach said, "and sometimes the camel has its heels dug in."

Curtis Myden, UCSC, with IM and breaststroke spots — Marco Chiesa

System 2001

Dr. Jean-Marie De Koninck

System 2001 is a computer program designed to help the swimming coach do his or her seasonal planning, prepare daily workouts and monitor his swimmers. It will guide the coach through the season by suggesting a training pattern for each athlete (or group of swimmers).

System 2001 is also an educational tool, providing the coach with current information on the specific energy systems and their use at the different stages of training. It also alerts the coach when he or she is possibly moving in the wrong direction.

- System 2001 will be availbale September 1, 1992.
- System 2001 is available in French or English.
- Price: $ 745 +GST (includes: the computer program, the procedures manual and the technical content manual).
- Discount price for orders placed before August 15, 1992.

BACKWASH

Backwash features short clips, gossip, letters and opinion. Contributions are welcomed.
Now for the rumours behind the news.

Olympic Heroes. It seems that swimming has four dedicated crime fighters. After a quiet meal at the Trough & Brew coaches Bill Sawchuk, Craig McCord, Steve Price and Alberta Swimming's's Don Wilson, spotted a man arguing with an elderly lady over who should keep her money.

Since the man had a knife to her throat, he seemed to be winning, until a fleet footed Sawchuk chased him off. The swimming posse chased the man for 20 minutes until they lost him in a park.

Do as I say and I'll do what you do. Nancy Sweetnam, like most swimmers, spent part of the winter at southern training camps. Since she was training alone the only person she had to fight off for lane space was her coach (aka Mama Sweetcakes) who got in at the end of each practice to churn off a 100 freestyle set.

NYAC, who was also in Florida, stumbled into the pool early one day and coach Mike Gurgol bet his swimmers 500 metres off their workout that they couldn't predict her time for the last 100.

When one swimmer suggested 1:03. Gurgol looked over and said, "Remember this is Mrs. Sweetnam I'm talking about."

This is what it is really all about. During high pressure meets like the Olympic Trials it's easy to forget what the essence of the sport is all about. A reminder was waiting for Nathalie Giguere when she leaving the pool after qualifying for the team.

When she reached the foyer a huge group from her club, SELECT were waiting for her and burst into applause as she came into sight. Sometimes the rewards, like this one, are less tangible than medals. (Appropriately she burst into tears for them).

Have fan club. Will travel. COBRA coach Mike Pliuskaitis wanted to make sure that his swimmers had some support at the Trials, so way back in October he scheduled an age group meet in Montreal for the same week. Each night the COBRA age groupers provided the loudest cheering.

It's 100 more than I was planning. Vlastimil Cerny, the incredible shrinking man, received a telegram from his swim club. It read, "Good luck on your 150 metre swims". Obviously the telegraph office typist wasn't a swimmer. It should have read, "...on your 100 and 50 metre swims."

All that glitters is not gold. More than one swimmer was quoted as saying that they had no retirement plans after the Olympics. In fact, many of the long-in-the-tooth brigade are saving the World Cup for their swan song.

Is it because they want to end their careers swimming short course? Nope. The truth lies a little closer to the hip pocket than that. Most of these would-be-retirees figure they may as well take advantage of the cash prizes, not to mention frequent flier points they accumulate while jet setting for free.

Wonder if they learned that trick from the national office?!

Who taught you to keep secrets? The RCMP? It seems the 1988 drug scandal and the resulting Dubin Inquiry have made little impact on the way drug testing was handled at the Trials. Taking a page from FINA's book of logic (why test the winners), all the testing at the Olympic Trials was random.

Supposedly all of the team will be tested before they leave for Spain. But this is all a HUSH HUSH secret and nobody is suppose to know.

Glad we learned about it from one of the Olympic team swimmers.

Confirmed. Tom Ponting's nail biting charge in the 100 fly wasn't the reason father Stu (and chair) fell off the officials stand.

If you haven't got anything nice to say about someone....you come and sit right beside me. Brantford Aquatics has taken a page right from the Backwash training book. One of our sleuths asked coach Mark Fellner where his swimmers could be found. "They're on a 20 minutes gossip session as part of their warm up."

Overheard on the Deck.
"It's every girl's dream to be in the Olympics." Julie Howard has some news for diamond collector Liz Taylor.

"I like swimming distance events because your are in the lead for longer." Nikki Dryden on relishing the moment....the long moment.

"I was born in Matagamy Quebec, but I've never been there." Marianne Limpert on where she spent the first two years of her life.

Swimming slow? You might want to blame it on Axel Rose.
Who's listening to what before they race.
Gary Anderson: AC/DC and Metallica
Mike Mason: Metallica, Guns and Roses
Guylaine Cloutier: G N' R or Dance
Kristin Topham: G N' R, Madonna, INXS, Rolling Stones
Andrea Nugent: Guns N' Roses. Races are the only time I listen to them
Chris Bowie: Rolling Stones, Kinks, Yardbirds, 60's Rock
Jon Kelly: Serge Gainsbourgh
Mark Tewksbury: I've eclectic taste. Jazz, acid, house, classical Ray Brown: Metallica, AC/DC, Frank Sinatra, but only when I'm cooking.
Nancy Sweetnam: Nothing. I go within.
Kevin Draxinger: Nothing. Why? Do you want to give me a Walkman?

Red, white and who are you? There's a new breed of coach on the deck at the Trials and his name is "American."

Paul Bergen, the former stay slim/go fast guru of Etobicoke, had three ex-Pepsi proteges in tow from his club in Napa Valley California.

But it wasn't just club coaches who were there. There were a handful of university coaches prowling the deck and eyeing the talent. Isn't this an infringement of the strict NCAA recruitment rules? (Just wondering.)

One coach said that in the past 12 months he has had more letters from Canadian swimmers enquiring about scholarships to his mid-west school, than he has received in total for the last 12 years.

Room with a view. While most of the world was glued to their TV sets watching the tragic Los Angeles riots, IM star Gary Anderson only had to stroll to the roof of his apartment to watch the pyrotechnics.

Anderson goes to school at USC which is just blocks from some of the worst burning.

Remember... It's not true until it has been officially denied.
